'Your Grandfather's Store'

Years ago there was a dividing line between the man who wore ready-to-wear clothes and the one who patronized the tailor.

Today, there's no difference—men don't buy the former because it is the cheapest way but for the reason that ready-to-wear clothes are clothes at their

AS A WOMAN SEES IT

By RHETA CHILDE DORR.

What can be done to prevent such shocking tragedies as that which brought the life of Marian Lambert to its pathetic close? The little unhappy child in the wild, wind-swept wood, murdered or self-slain, with her innocent school books beside her in the snow, has stirred the pitying heart of the entire country.

Why did it happen? What could her mother have done, her teachers, her friends, to have preserved her? Apparently a studious, well brought up girl, Marian Lambert while still in high school was living a secret emotional life on a scale of recklessness which could end in nothing but disaster. Old-fashioned, conservative people are charging that Marian Lambert was the victim of modern ideals of freedom for young girls. If she had been kept closer at home, if all her associations with boys had been rigidly chaperoned, her tragedy could never have happened.

"Under the present system of society," a well known author of venerable years is quoted as saying, "if the young girl escapes the awful thing she is fortunate—nothing more."

Yet young girls have never been safe, even in the old days, when it was considered improper for a lady to cross a drawing room floor unattended. If we may trust the literature of the Georges and of Victoria's early reign, girls were far less safe then than they are now. Every girl was fair prey for every man, a younger gentleman of quality scrupling not to try to ruin the daughter or sister of his best friend. Read "She Stoops to Conquer" and the Fielding romances.

Safety for girls lies not in less freedom, but in more. They must be given physical freedom, mental freedom, which means clear, clean knowledge of themselves and of men; and, above all, freedom from the bondage of their own sex.

It is customary to begin in infancy to train girls to coquetry, to teach them to lure, to attract by physical charms. The huge pink hair bow, the white shoes, the lace-trimmed frock, are made the important things of life to little girls. They soon learn to put an exaggerated value on clothes and good looks.

You can't begin this way and afterward expect a girl to think of herself as a responsible human being with a destiny to work out from within. Inevitably she will think of herself as a sex-creature with a sex game to play. And every so often the game ends in the bitterness of death that was Marian Lambert's fate.

SUFFRAGE LEADERS DISCUSS THIS STATE

At a Conference in Washington and Plan to Arouse Interest among the Women.

ITCHING RINGWORM ALL OVER FACE

Kept Spreading. So Bad Could Not Sleep at Night. Itched and Burned. Ashamed to Go Anywhere.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"Ringworm first began on my face and spread to my neck and it got almost all over my face. It first came out in one little bump and kept spreading, and it got so bad I could not sleep at night. The ringworms were large and as thick as they could be and the skin was red and inflamed. They itched and burned and the itching was so bad that I irritated my face by scratching. I was ashamed to go anywhere."

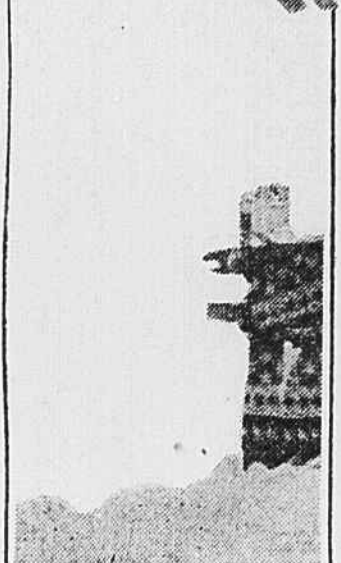

"A friend asked me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. By the time one box of Ointment and one cake of Soap were gone, I was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Sallie Harwood, Evansville, Tenn., July 16, 1915.

LEAPS 192.9 FEET; BREAKS SKI MARK

Ragnar Omtvedt in action.

All ski jumping records were broken in the annual midwinter ski carnival at Steamboat Springs, Colo., a few days ago by Ragnar Omtvedt, Chicago professional, who cleared a distance of 192.9 feet.

Well trained mind, an abundance of information on topics of paramount interest, the vital questions of the day. She has but recently returned from an extended tour through West Virginia where she has been doing what she characterizes as "church work." That is, she has personally seen all representatives of the different churches wherever it was possible, has spoken in many districts where she has enlisted the pastors in the cause.

"I think," said Mrs. Craigie, speaking recently of her trip, "that the one great danger that besets us in West Virginia, is that the workers are inclined to be a bit optimistic. Much work remains to be done, although much has been accomplished. The need seems great to me to secure an understanding with the men who are in the higher places of the state, the political leaders; the large employers and manufacturers, leaders of all religious and denominational orders and associations."

"Personal solicitation among, for instance, the large number of foreigners in the state, does not seem to me as sure a way of securing their vote, as to make sure of the man who is higher up, who employs them, and to whom, in their ignorance of the way of our country, they look for guidance in the matter of voting."

"I do not mean," said Mrs. Craigie, "that such workers are 'instructed,' as politicians say, but their vote is certainly influenced in a large measure. Make sure of your business men, your clergy, your mine operator and the other vote will follow."

Appropos of this "instruction," one of the visitors at the meeting vouchsafed a personal experience of his own. Traveling on business through southern West Virginia a few years ago, at the time of the McKinley election, he found at the polls large numbers of negroes and foreigners voting. He was particularly interested in the latter, and wishing to know if they really understood for what they were voting, approached one representative of sunny Italy.

"Do you know what the difference is between free trade and protection?" he asked. "McKinley," answered the Italian.

"It is a very pleasant day," then said the interlocutor. "McKinley," said the voter. Several other remarks as widely diverse as these resulted in the invariable answer, "McKinley." "It was the only word he knew, and that had been taught him. Fortunately for the political reputation of West Virginia, another visitor stated that all that had been changed by registration laws now, and that it was impossible to have an 'instructed' vote.

whom we need. "Another element that has recently been injected into the West Virginia situation is the alleged sending of money into the state by the liquor interests for our defeat. That is now being done, and, considering the splendid example West Virginia has already set for the nation in the matter of prohibition, it would be unfortunate if every woman in the state should not rally to the call, to an alliance for women, and assist in the defeat of the projects of the liquor alliance."

The musicale which was given last week at the home of Mrs. Wesley Martin Stoner by the West Virginia Circle of Suffragists in the district, was repeated Thursday night for the benefit of the College Equal Suffrage Association. The local association of college women has pledged $50 to the cause, and Mrs. Stoner, assisting in raising the amount, has asked the organization to send the money into West Virginia, a request which was granted.

FAMILY AVOIDS SERIOUS SICKNESS

By Being Constantly Supplied With

Thedford's Black-Draught.

McDuff, Va.—"I suffered for several years," says Mrs. J. B. Whitaker, of this place, "with sick headache, and stomach trouble."

Ten years ago a friend told me to try Thedford's Black-Draught, which I did, and I found it to be the best family medicine for young and old.

I keep Black-Draught on hand all the time now, and when my children feel a little bad, they ask me for a dose, and it does them more good than any medicine they ever tried.

We never have a long spell of sickness in our family, since we commenced using Black-Draught."

Thedford's Black-Draught is purely vegetable, and has been found to regulate weak stomachs, aid digestion, relieve indigestion, colic, wind, nausea, headache, sick stomach, and similar symptoms.

It has been in constant use for more than 70 years, and has benefited more than a million people.

Your druggist sells and recommends Black-Draught. Price only 25c. Get a package to-day.

Here's the Best Interior Wall Finish Made

JUST FIGURE OUT THE COST OF KALSOMINING. If you believe in economy don't let another room in your house be kalsomined—it wastes money and it's unsanitary. You know the real cost of kalsomine is not in itself—but in the constant retouching, recoating or washing it off again. Wall paper is even worse.

JOHNSTON'S DULL KOTE PAINT

THE DURABLE, WASHABLE WALL COVERING. DULL KOTE outwears either wall paper or kalsomine—it is much cheaper in the long run and far more sanitary. It gives a rich, velvety finish—glossless and unfading—which lasts for years and is as EASILY WASHED AS TILE. Coming in liquid form, ready for immediate use, your painter will find DULL KOTE mighty easy to apply. It dries perfectly flat—no trace of laps or brush marks—a hard, non-porous, elastic film. That is why it is the only sanitary wall covering.
